Some of you in the Kilkich community may not know the Tribe updated its website.

Go to: www.coquilletribe.org; find the "COMMUNITY" tab on top of the page; scroll down to "PUBLIC SERVICES"; and click.

The "PUBLIC SERVICES" website includes information on the Coquille Tribal Community Fund, the Tribal Police Department, and the Coquille Indian Tribe Library.

A separate page contains the Library's online resources. You can access the page directly by using this easy-to-remember web site address:

http://52.27.76.203/?page_id=213.

Now, without further ado, we'll look at some of these resources.

Growing up Indian: An Emic Perspective

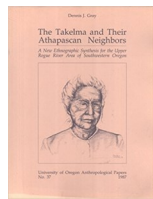

Dr. George Wasson's biographical thesis describes the historical and contemporary experiences of the Coquille Indian Tribe and their close neighbors. The work includes many historical and traditional stories including an extended version of "Coyote and the Strawberries".

Considering the Coquille taboo regarding telling Coyote stories in summer, maybe wait until winter to read this thesis.

Brush Fences and Basket Traps

Dr. Scott Byram's focus on how the Coquille and other Oregon coastal tribes caught salmon and other fish. He focuses on fish weirs, the fence-like structure built across rivers and creeks to corral and capture a variety of fish species. Remains of these weirs are scattered throughout the Coquille Indian Tribe's traditional territory.

The Takelma and Their Athapascan Neighbors

Dennis Gray's work focuses on the native peoples who lived in the Rogue River drainage in southwestern Oregon. This includes the Takelma, Da-du-be-te-de (from the Applegate River area), and the Tal-tuc-tun-te-da (from the Galice Creek area).

A Few Other Things ...

Native Newspapers

The CIT Library web page has links to the official publications of CTCLUSI, Warm Springs, Siletz, Umatilla, Klamath, and Grand Ronde tribes.

Printed copies of the CIT's K'wen 'inish-ha newsletter are available at CIHA and the CIT Library.

Legislative and Legal Resources

The CIT Library web page has links to several legal resources including the feel-good text of the Western Oregon Termination Act; Congress.gov; the Law Library of Congress, managed library of all federal laws, bills, statues, etc.; and The Native American Rights Fund, a non-profit that provides legal assistance to tribes and organizations and has successfully defended sovereignty rights in hundreds of court cases.

Traditional Languages

To summarize this section, there are several links to weblogs, websites, and PDF documents containing translations, recordings, and similar information on the Miluk, Hanis, and Chinuk Wawa languages.

The Coquille Indian Tribe Library is open to the general public. Stop by and check out a book or two!

The Culture, Education and Library Services (CELS) Department is located at 495 Miluk Drive. The offices are open Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Total Solar Eclipse over Oregon on August 21

On Monday, August 21, 2017, a total eclipse of the Sun will take place as the Moon completely blocks the Sun's light and daylight turns to twilight as the Sun, Moon, and Earth line up to reveal the Sun's atmosphere - the corona. The last total solar eclipse in Oregon was in 1979; the last total solar eclipse across the U.S. was in 1918. The eclipse will start at the coast shortly before 10:15 a.m. and the sun will be totally blocked out (in the area shown on the map below) by 10:17 a.m. The eclipse will cross Oregon in the span of about 10 minutes and will continue to move east. If you want to witness the "total" eclipse, you must be in the path shown on the map below. Otherwise, you will witness a partial solar eclipse. The solar eclipse will cross 14 states from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

If you will be viewing the solar eclipse, be sure you have proper eye protection to prevent serious eye damage. Sunglasses do NOT provide adequate protection; eclipse viewers are recommended.
