PREPARE in a year

What disasters can affect you?

Communities throughout the Pacific Northwest are subject to many types of disasters. While we hope that such occurrences never happen, it has been shown time and time again that being prepared for disasters is wise. Now is the time to do some research either online or by attending a preparedness fair or presentation hosted by your local jurisdiction or community group to learn about your local hazards.

- Create a Disaster Plan. Meet with your family and discuss why you need to be prepared for disasters. Plan to share the responsibilities and work together as a team.
- Develop a family/household communication and reunification plan so that you can maintain contact and take the best actions for each of you to re-unite if you are separated.
- Discuss the types of disasters that are likely to happen. Explain what to do in each case.
- Discuss what to do in an evacuation. Pick two places to meet:
 - Right outside your home in case of fire.
 - Outside your neighborhood in case you can't return home.
 - Everyone must know their address and phone number.
 - Put your Plan into Action.
 - Teach children how and when to call 911. Show them how your cell phone works. Many counties in Oregon allow Text to 911. Call if you can, text if you can't!
 - Post emergency telephone numbers in a visible location.
 - Show each family member how and when to turn off the water, gas, and electricity at the main switches.
- Other tips:
 - Check for adequate home and renters insurance coverage.
 - Install an ABC fire extinguisher in your home. Teach each family member to use it and where it is kept.
 - Install smoke and carbon monoxide detectors on each level of your home, in appropriate areas.
 - Stock emergency supplies and assemble disaster supply kits.
 - Take a First Aid and CPR class.
 - Determine the best escape routes from your home. Find two ways out of each room.
 - Find a safe spot in your home for each type of disaster.
